Building permits plunge for '81

FOR A BRIEF instant the past returned in the form of the eighth annual Draytonville Fall rendezvous and penitence rally. Customized participants from near and far turned up for the two days of orgies. (Photo by Suzanne Greenleaf)

Building permits issued in Drayton Valley to the end of September are running about 941 per cent behind last year's permit totals, according to figures released Monday by Town building inspector and development officer Al Chatterman. Drayton Valley "has had no new housing starts since June," he noted, a factor which is probably related to "high interest rates and cutbacks in the labor force." This year's permit totals stand at $1,113,000, compared to $4,000,000 in 1980. Residential permits have dropped from a 1980 total of $1,250,000 to $902,100, but the town did record an $80,000 industrial permit this year—for construction at Long's Funeral Home—compared with a lack of permits in this category in 1980. The biggest drops have been in commercial, industrial and apartment permits issued by the town. The commercial total dropped from $3,488,084 in 1980 to $454,400 as of Sept. 30 this year, while industrial permits plummeted from $1,455,000 to $350,000. There are no apartment permits issued to date, while last year's total stood at $991,500. Residential garage sales are a popular item this year—the town has issued permits totalling $15,000 for three in the end of last month. With the lumbering of the new hospital expected early in 1982, Mr. Chatterman noted, it's doubtful whether the town can climb to its 1980 mark, or 1979 building permit total of about $7.5 million, by the end of this year. The hospital is expected to bring in a permit total of between $15 and $17 million.

Need $75,000 in donations

Local agency wants town rescue vehicle

By Marlene Dick
The Drayton Valley fire department and local RCMP detachment are handing together in an effort to raise $75,000 through donations from major oil and service companies, for the purchase of an emergency response vehicle to handle rescue work at accident scenes.

The project is being spearheaded by the Drayton Valley Emergency Response Association, a 50-member team of firefighters and police formed in July of this year. Chairman Bob Keller said the rescue truck they plan to buy is similar to the Tri-County unit, operated from Ladang, and added the vehicle will be a necessary backup in town.

"We've faced four major accidents just in the past year requiring the type of equipment this response vehicle will carry," Mr. Keller added, accidents where drivers and passengers were trapped in wrecked vehicles until the necessary equipment arrived from other centres to free them.

At present, the nearest locations with emergency response equipment are Ladang, Spruce Grove, Rocky Mountain House and Hinton, and Mr. Keller said local Brown has found delays up to two hours and more "standing around helplessness" waiting for the needed tools to arrive.

The group has its eye on a one-ton truck similar in appearance to a small motorhome, equipped with air bags, self-contained air units and the jaws of life—a device which can cut through vehicle metals. It would also contain some fire fighting gear and additional gear to assist in rescue operations.

The truck would be staffed by two firemen from the local department, and would be available to respond to accident calls in a 50-mile radius to the north, east and south of Drayton Valley, and a 20-mile territory to the west. "It will be a larger territory than what is covered in our fire protection area," Mr. Keller noted.

Clinic opens Oct. 27th

A Red Cross blood clinic will be held in the Drayton Valley Legion from 4:00 to 8:00 p.m. on Oct. 27. It will be a one-day clinic and organizers are looking for approximately 150 donors. These donors may be anywhere from 18 to 65 years of age.

According to Hy Dahl, organizer for the event, there are usually wide variations of donors who range in experience from those who are donating blood for the first time, to those who have already made between 20 and 30 donations.

Although there are some people who consistently come out to donate blood many more refuse simply because they are squeamish," she said.

Others are unable to give blood because it may have a detrimental effect either on their health or that of the recipient. That the Red Cross will not accept donations from people over 60 years of age, or under 100 pounds is (Continued on page 2) covered in our fire protection area," Mr. Keller noted. Although most fire department members have first aid certificates and training in critical emergency resuscitation, Mr. Keller said the emergency vehicle will not replace an ambulance at the accident scene. "We're only there to get people out of vehicles, machinery or equipment," he added, "when the ambulance crew can take over."

The Emergency Response Association is responsible for total funding to purchase the unit, and Mr. Keller said the group is starting "right from scratch." Conversion of local companies began last Thursday, he added, and the group received its first financial figures of the project.

The exact figure of the project are being asked to donate "we'd rather not commit on it," Mr. Keller added, but if the cause is successful "we've got the money."

We won!
A Drayton Valley Brownie club and female chess players won a second round in the bottle collection business over the weekend—and probably a lot of brownies in the process. Local resident Verla Bock spent some time this past summer with a family of brownies from the Drayton Valley area who pay for gold in the brownie north. The Brownie Bunch Club held their executive office elections for the year, with some special prizes in attendance at the meeting. —Page 21

People with heart conditions, high blood pressure, diabetes, epilepsy or thyroid conditions are unable to give blood. The same applies to those who have had hepatitis or hypoglycemia.

Other health problems could cause a donation to be delayed. These include such things as chest colds, flu, surgery, dental work, measles, chicken pox, cold sores, malaria, mononucleosis, pneumonia, shingles and various medications.

It takes anywhere from 24 hours to six months before these persons may donate blood.

Once the blood has been donated it will go to Edmonton where it will be divided into various blood groups and tested for diseases.

The healthy blood is then refrigerated and stored as whole blood or is separated into its various components such as plasma, red cells, platelets, cryoprecipitate and white cells.

Now liquor store

Tenders still open

Tenders will close on Oct. 30 for a new liquor store which is to be built in Drayton Valley.

Construction on the 8,000 square foot building is expected to start this fall.

According to an Alberta Liquor Control Board (ALCB) official in Edmonton, the new store, located on the corner of 86th Avenue and 24th Street, will more than double the size of the store which is to be built in Drayton Valley.

The store which is currently being used was built in 1961, and has an area of 3,200 square feet.

The new store, however, has been designed to take full advantage of the growth of the town. Current plans allow for an increase in the size of up to 10,000 square feet.

The larger sized store will be offered for sale following the completion of the new building.

Club provides for single clients

By Rosemary Greenaway
Providing people with companionship and a place to socialize was the prime motivation behind the formation of the West Valley Singles Club in Drayton Valley.

Alternate program ...

H.W. Pickers are more integrated with the rest of the school, said Mr. Orzech. In Stony Plain the students operate out of a building in the downtown area, while in Drayton Valley they are located in a portable near the school. There are currently some students registered in the Drayton Valley program. Each student works on an individual basis and is encouraged to take responsibility by setting their own career goals, said Tom Meenan, the teacher in charge of the Drayton Valley program.

After going through the EOP program, students have a variety of options open to them. They can return to the mainstream or Junior high, take Grade 10 classes, take a job in town or begin an apprenticeship, said Mr. Meenan. Classroom learning includes math, language arts, social studies, science, reading, communications and careers. The subjects are made relevant to the students because they incorporate skills which are needed in work situations.

An example of this is the career course, which involves talking about various reading skills and filling out applications forms. Much also occurs in such studies as there are various forms of the course offered. Ten different types of work are taught. One of the main programs is known as real-life math and deals mainly with the use of math in the business world. The classes make use of various learning aids such as job experience lists, audio tapes, and videotapes. (Dinner and transportation is provided in the language arts program in the morning. These teaching aids help to make the courses more interesting to the students.

The various courses are taught in a progression with students completing each level before going on to the next. The program endeavor to build up the students' confidence and various skills which will be needed in the workplace or through further education.

approximately 51 people attended the first meeting and since then the membership has grown to 62. West Valley Singles is open to those who have been separated, divorced, widowed, or are single parents. Anyone who is over 20 and single may join the group. Presently the group has members not only from other communities such as Leduc, Evansburg and Camrose.

The people involved in the club come from various occupations. They range from oil workers to business men, said Dolores Costa, a member of the organization. Since its inception, West Valley Singles has facilitated primarily as a social club with various activities planned each month at a general meeting.

These activities have included dances, pot luck suppers, card parties, and family barbecues, said Ms. Costa. In addition, the club is planning a group travel vacation for 1982. Some of the possibilities which have been mentioned are for days in Las Vegas and 10 days in Hawaii, she stated. She added that the group tries to reflect the interests of its membership. "I feel a big responsibility to those I represent," said Ms. Costa.

West Valley Singles helps in that the children know that their mother or father is not doing something rather than staying at home by themselves, she said. The next meeting of the club will be held on Nov. 4. Anyone wishing to join the club should contact the group by phone 542-5405, 542-5400 or 542-5441.

Milk a cow in the morning, play golf in the afternoon and attend a concert in the evening. These activities are all part of a farm vacation. Farm vacations while a short drive of Montreal, Quebec City, Ottawa, Toronto or Vancouver are made to please all members of the family.

Subsidy future remains unsettled

By Rosemary Greenaway
A meeting of the ambulance service held this Saturday will help decide the fate of the current ambulance subsidy program in the Drayton Valley area.

The Council of Parkland, Westbank and Leduc are all involved in the program as well as the towns of Drayton Valley, Draytonburg, Breton, Estevan and Wainwright. Each of the municipalities contribute to the program, which was begun in the early 1970s and has a representative sitting on the board. According to County of Iron View, the ambulance board has accomplished its goal for there are now two ambulance companies operating out of Drayton Valley. The other company, Drayton Valley Ambulance, was established in the area.

The subsidy, however, seems to serve little purpose for the taxpayers no longer receive any direct user benefits, said Mr. Vowk. He added that one time the ambulance company gave reduced rates to residents in the Drayton Valley and Breton hospital districts.

The government has its finger in the private enterprise pie and it should either be fair or get out," he added. He noted if the ambulance board cannot be fair and split the subsidy, then perhaps the commission should be disbanded completely.

The purpose of subsidizing then goes out the window," said Mr. Vowk. Another problem with the current situation is when the subsidy begins, there was only one ambulance company which resulted all of the benefits. Since that time another company has begun working out of the area but still only one ambulance is the price still higher. A subsidy helps meet these expenses and upgrade the equipment, said Dick de Jong, owner of Drayton Valley Ambulance.

From Osburn, owner of Tri-County, agrees that "expensive alone are very high" with buying equipment and making repairs. He added, however, that all they can do about the ambulance board is wait and see what happens.

Mayor enyoys office

By Marion Dick
It's been a year since Bob Mayhew's 50-year margin in the municipal election was the last he has as mayor of Drayton Valley—a year he says has been "anything but boring."

Mayor Mayhew's victory over incumbent Neville Le Brasseur was the start of a year fraught with mounting problems in the town's operations, and with staffing problems at the Town office. He has "been the ball of the contribution to my source of livelihood," he said, but he professes to "not" enjoying the job and his challenges.

The past year has been difficult, but mayor Mayhew pointed out there have been bright spots as well. The public meeting earlier this year, gave citizens the opportunity to air their questions and concerns. Bob, and council has used the time to ensure the present administration members are comfortable in their posts.

"We have a strong administration, good staff relations with council and communications with the public," he added. "We are also running every municipal service needed in town with 40 per cent less staff than before."

Whether you see a person with a swollen head, you wonder how so thick a skull could expand on such

Chris' cellulite gets a contour

By Chris Shannahan
For someone who didn't even know what cellulite was a week ago, going to Drayton Lake to take a herbal body wrap didn't actually give me any of it.

However, it's a different story when one learns cellulite is a type of "lipoganglion" which gives people jiggly thighs, saddlebag buttocks and legs with a texture that reminds you of orange skins. Even more interesting is the claim that herbal body wraps can get rid of the stuff.

Still, when the person who is supposed to get the wrap is about as fat as a football goal post, it's understandable the one might be a bit skeptical. That when your sister tells you to go to the local natural foods store to buy a wrap and write about the experience, even if you are obliged to give it a try.

Delores Hoffman runs her business in a very quiet of her home called the Cellulite Control Centre. It has been against this jiggly-like substance, Mrs. Hoffman claims a person will lose an average of three to seven inches from the first wrap.

So far, she's never failed to at least remove the minimum amount of cellulite. Mrs. Hoffman stressed cellulite isn't to be confused with normal fat. In fact, it's a porous sacculus and not a mass of fat cells that won't go away, chances are it's cellulite. In fact, it's a form of fat people just can't seem to lose by conventional methods.

While taking off your clothes to be wrapped in a small room by Mrs. Hoffman might seem embarrassing, the wrapping process was rather painless.

Dressed only in boxer shorts, I was massaged at various strategic locations; had the remaining points massaged with pure olive oil. Mrs. Hoffman recommended customers drink seven or eight glasses of water or juice to flush out the system of any other impurities.

Mrs. Hoffman first learned of cellulite control from a relative who operates a cosmetic salon in B.C. So, naturally interested in the technique, she took a two-week course in Calgary from cellulite expert Ellen Long.

After receiving her certificate of completion in body wrapping, Mrs. Hoffman immediately opened her business, and it's not long before the body starts feeling a bit better.

The sitting part is a very relaxing one. It's like things are set to stretch out a bit like a warm blanket. When the body begins to relax, the mind is up, the most important part begins.

Mrs. Hoffman removes the bandage and recommends the wrap is to be done the night, and Mrs. Hoffman said this is the vital area. Feeling like I hadn't lost much except for some of the beer I had consumed, the night before, I, as well as Mrs. Hoffman, was surprised to find I had apparently lost a total of 10 inches.

On my personal chart, my measurements revealed more than an inch off my upper back, and two inches gone from my hip.

Feeling a little pritty afterwards from the herbal solution, I was surprised to hear I couldn't take a bath or shower for 12 hours, because the herbs keep working for at least that long. As well, Mrs. Hoffman recommended customers drink seven or eight glasses of water or juice to flush out the system of any other impurities.

ENJOYING THEIR HERBAL body wrap, Janice Hoffman, on the right, and her friend, Chris Shannahan, sit at a massage table in her home and materials go to work to lift out the cellulite tissue. Janice's mother, Delores, runs a cosmetic salon in B.C. Lake, the only cellulite control centre in the area.

Depending on the person, the first wrap can result in the loss of just a few inches or many. Mrs. Hoffman recently wrapped a postman who had no visible weight, problem, and she said in her second 10 inches.

It's important to note the herbal treatment reduces inches, not weight. It's said. For people who have a real weight problem, the loss of inches through the breakdown of cellulite can encourage the person to continue exercising and doing the best of their bodies.

The basic purpose of the wrap is to tone the skin, and Mrs. Hoffman said this

Inflation woes can be handled

The Homemaker by Janice McGregor Alberta Agriculture 542-5368

As prices continue to rise, we wonder how to deal with inflation in a household word nowadays. It's something we've come to accept as almost ever ending, but it's still something we need to do little about other than complain.

Though inflation is tied very closely to almost all facets of the economy, it's tied just as closely to our own expectations of what our money would do for us.

And of what we expect for the future. By taking a positive approach to changing some of our buying habits, inflation's effects could be turned to plans.

With money short, it's necessary to take a look at priorities. Just what is important to you and your family? What are you doing to save money? What are you doing to spend money?

rich take precedence? With choices to make, it's a good time to sit down with the family and determine financial priorities. And it should definitely be a family affair—a time to discuss family values and goals.

Inflation can be an insulator to increased family communication. With ends not quite meeting, it's necessary to start keeping track of spending. Just where is the money going? Knowing just how much money is spent on family expenses, it's easier to decide where to reduce spending for items that are really desired. It's really in writing to have your expenses down on paper. Then when someone wonders where the money is going, you'll at least know.

Inflation too, can be used to advantage in relation to family activities. Rising prices often mean cutting back on the use of expensive convenience items—particularly in the area of food. Whether it means planting a garden, buying bread, or going on a camping holiday, it's a great opportunity to get the family to work together.

With inflation we're often forced to make better use of products or services that we already own. It may mean making better use of old coats, or driving at 50 mph to economize on gas, or reminding that old wheel.

In light of world shortages in the area of food and natural resources, it's not the least we can do it's time to change our consumer society to a "conservative society."

Inflation may mean waiting instead of doing, cutting the grass with the old mower, instead of a new one. Inflation too, can be used to advantage in relation to family activities. Rising prices often mean cutting back on the use of expensive time to over-ought isn't high time we were a little more active. From costs are a major component of spending. It's the opportune time to learn more about inflation so that every food dollar counts. Better health can be the offshoot of this method of coping with inflation.

Complaining about prices is easy to do. Effective complaining takes skill and time, but it's skill worth developing. Take the time to write that letter about excess packaging; about the blunder that didn't perform as advertised, and about consistently unfulfilled promises. By putting your complaints in writing, you're taking a positive step toward the control against inflation.

We have come to expect a high standard of living, and a standard that is continuously increasing. More is

For money to be in good. Better means the standard of living is relatively high and though it's not "easy" to get by on less, it's certainly not impossible.

As prices rise and inflation trends continue, we may never know how high it is, but by simplifying our lifestyle some of the rising prices may not affect us.

Malnutrition is closely linked with disability. The most severe form affects 100 million children under age five in the developing world. In 1979, UNICEF (the United Nations Children's Fund) spent $14.4 million on child nutrition projects.

Help UNICEF continue this valuable work, by contributing generously to the public and private organizations that help UNICEF's struggle and black bones.

This is the law of the Yukon and over the mountains in plain: "Send out your health and health; send me your strength and your mine. Send me your strength and your mine. Send me your strength and your mine. Send me your strength and your mine." Robert Service

By Nevie Robb

Fifty-two miles west of Dawson City, one leaves the Canadian light of the "Top of the World" highway leading to Alaska, and follows the tortuous route of a backroad trail that terminates 19 miles south of this pioneer gold camp, nicknamed Silverhill.

It was in 1979 that Drayton Valley resident Adrian Brisebois, looking for the north, was captured by the law of gold and pan him in a river in two days on the shore of Fifty-Mile River.

This area was first mined over a century before the famous Klondike Gold Rush—since that time the pay gravel has remained machines involved in gold recovery.

The 993 Caterpillar loader alone consumes 30 gallons an hour. Additional equipment includes a hydraulic auger drill for prospecting, and an 1100 Case with bucket and dump blade.

A recent purchase is the Deere Roadway cutter, an underground mining machine designed to move 120 yards an hour. However, that old adversary, the person front, has forced a re-design. This incredibly hard, frozen ground wears away the tungsten-carbide bit in 20 minutes.

At a replacement cost of $25 for each of 30 bits, the operational expense is too high. So it's back to the drawing board for Armand Brisebois, the resourceful brother who spends much of his time in the machine shop at Drayton Valley rebuilding equipment to ship north.

In August of 1981, Armand completed two new augers to expedite the movement of gravel—because he built them himself, the cost was half of the manufacturer's list price.

Watching the shoring operation at Fifty Mile, one is impressed by the power of man and machine. Adrian Brisebois, main force in the placer operation, skillfully maneuvers the huge 993 Caterpillar loader that dumps 300 yards an hour into the loader.

His son, 15-year-old Darren, sometimes visits with his efficient operating of the 120 inch pusher falling from the end of the shovels. Experiences have taught the Brisebois to stop for a clean-up every 15 to 18 hours to avoid loss of gold over the shovels.

The cleanup is approached, even by seasoned miners, with some sense of excitement: it is the time when the gold is recovered and weighed to measure the success of their labor.

The choice suggests may be marketed to jewellers, while the bulk of the shovels harvested from the shovels will go to an agent buying for a smelting company. Roughed fine gold can be concentrated in a gold brick.

On the site at Silverhill the camp gathers in anticipation to watch Adrian produce a miner's brick. Wearing asbestos gloves and a protective face mask, he beats the concentrate in the crucible of the recovery furnace to a temperature of 1,300 degrees F., well beyond the 1,400 degree melting point of gold.

The fiery molten liquid is stirred with an iron rebar rod to dissolve any gas trapped.

SPOONING UP GOLD samples is an everyday occurrence for the Brisebois brothers, as their shoring operations yield smaller fragments used for jewelry or which are melted into gold bars.

steps. Adrian then removes the glowing crucible with tongs, and tips it to allow the flowing fire of molten and gaseous waste materials to fill the mold. The overflow takes away the waste, leaving the miner's bar with only a thin layer of slag which may be removed upon cooling.

The end product is an amalgam of gold, silver and traces of other metals. This process allows the recovery of fine gold particles in a form that is simple to handle and ship.

This year another brother went north. In the spring of 1981, Marcel Brisebois accompanied to the call of the Yukon and started his own placer operation on two claims adjoining those of his brothers.

With his wife Sandy and three children settled in a comfortable double-wide mobile home, Marcel took up his battle with the perma-frost. Having recovered enough of the overburden to get at the pay gravel, he is now engaged in shoring operations.

Assisting him is stepfather Dave Staring, who brings his carpentry skills and mining background. Dave enjoys this wilderness, which is reminiscent of the Coal Branch area of Alberta where he spent many years mining.

WATER IS RELEASED into the shovels to help bring the gold fragments into view, and these are later collected. Tom Hiltion (left) and Darryl Stratten assure the process is proceeding without any problems. (Photo courtesy Nevie Robb)

"A slice of her homemade bread is well worth the 1,700-mile trip from Drayton Valley."

While the thrill of viewing the rugged and fabulous is unforgettable, there is another ingredient which makes a visit to these family placer camps at Fifty-Mile a memorable experience—hospitality.

Whether it's coffee in the clubhouse with Anita Brisebois as evening host with food and drink, or a roast beef supper with Sandy and Marcel, one feels the warm friendliness traditional of the north. This hospitality is enhanced by the culinary skill of Allen Staring, mother of the Brisebois.

A slice of her homemade bread is well worth the 1,700-mile trip from Drayton Valley.

In spite of the race against the short working season, there is time to visit

Dawson City, to shop or take in as evening on the town. Armand and Conrad may invite the unassuming visitor to go a short distance north to Adrian Jackson's to sample a "boundary special."

This drink is a strong concoction, the ingredients of which are known only to Big Tom, proprietor of the camp's bar situated just inside the Alaska boundary. Certainly one of these specials is a prescription designed to make one forget the terror of the drive over the high point of the Top of the World Highway that leads to Alaska.

Leave the bell alone in Jackson's... unless you want a large bar tab to pay...

Another feature of this small, dim tavern is the large bell affixed to the bar. The innocent one who rings this bell has just committed himself to buying drinks for the team.

Armand and Conrad insist that it must be wired to all the cables in the surrounding hills, because as it takes time out, the previously empty bar suddenly fills up and the loud perpetrator of this action finds himself with a shakable bill to pay in honoring this custom.

Appreciative patrons throughout the years have left dollar bills as souvenirs, and now the walls and ceiling of this little stopping place are covered with autographed currency.

When October rolls around and winter closes the season of placer mining once again, what does the balance sheet show? Adrian sees 1981 as the best year yet from the standpoint of production, although lower gold prices will reduce profits.

Appreciable there was one in 1974 has paid off. Claim values in the area are high as evidenced by a recent sale of placer claims on Miller Creek in Terrestrial Gold for $2.5 million.

Robert Service said it best: "This is the law of the Yukon, that only the strong shall survive. That surely the weak shall perish, and only the fit survive."

Many placer miners have gone broke; the Brisebois have survived.

Balancing act

To do yoga well, listen to your body. Go only as far as you are comfortable, and hold the pose steady. When a pose you, you have stretched a little too much. Your attention should be on what you are doing.

The spine balances in a balancing posture which is from a sitting position. The balancing posture is from a sitting position. The balancing posture is from a sitting position.

Read the book, Yoga: The Art of Living, and reach back until you are balancing on the bottom of the spine.

Once you have the balance, consciously straighten one leg at a time, and lean back to maintain your balance. You are now in a V posture, with the hands horizontal to the floor.

This is an excellent tummy firming exercise. Hold, breathing freely for a few minutes. If you begin to shake in the posture, your body is indicating that you should go out of the position. Bend the knees and return to the first position.

For a variation, grasp the toes of each foot in the hands, and carefully straighten one leg at a time. If you are unable to hold the balance with both legs straightened, do one leg at a time.

From the above, still holding the toes, spread the legs apart. This variation has the added benefit of firming the inner thigh.

For a more difficult variation, hold the toes, straighten the legs, and pull the legs closer to the body, attempting to touch the forehead to the knees. This variation is a forward bending posture which stretches the hamstrings and helps reduce abdominal fat.

Hold each variation for a few seconds and get the feel of the position. Show this is a balance posture, persons with your balance will find it difficult.

Harmony begins now

Today's life is in the balance. The sign of the zodiac is in the fourth quarter and decreasing. You can borrow money, begin a new project, or start clearing a new piece of land with a new piece of land.

If you are spending money, machinery, appliances, cars or homes may be bought under this sign. It is a good time for partying, and rapid changes are especially likely to happen.

Harvest coffee beans on Oct. 22 will find us in the fourth quarter and decreasing. You can continue clearing land or start a reducing diet.

The written word is favored as well as letters or verbal agreements have writing. Visit a doctor if you have health problems, and practice preventive medicine by checking up with a monthly supply of health foods.

Super time Oct. 24 we will enter the new-found age of Libra, and are still in the fourth quarter and decreasing. Nights are extremely dark now.

Libra is our most harmonious sign so do everything that involves people participation. Planning meetings, social clubs, parties and get-togethers are all good. Don't have people who are hard to get along with will not continue now.

This is a time for smiling, feeding, righting wrongs, and explaining ourselves to those who may have mis-deemed us. The harmony extends to the time as all artists and musicians are in this. This is the time to ask through your own or separate go together, or to add new color to your busy living.

Just before breakfast Oct. 27 the moon will enter the Virgo sign of the zodiac, and it will be in the fourth quarter and decreasing.

Scorpio is the least harmonious sign, so the wonderful friendships of the past few days will end. People are quite frank and may hurt your feelings either intentionally or unintentionally, just what you think things are going well.

Throughout Scorpio, you can buy medicine. In fact, this is the time to stock up on a month's supply. You may be in unique or buy a home. If you are in that mood, this is the time to stock up on a month's supply.

Once new moon occurs mid-afternoon today we will be in the first quarter and decreasing, as well as in Scorpio. This is always the time to keep things in mind.

The only diets that should be begun now are diets to lose weight. No money should be borrowed during this quarter, but it is a good time to invest what you have in a savings plan, stock, or bonds. Whose holy week is it? Until Oct. 23, Gemini will be our luckiest sign with those having birthdays between June 16 and 21 most favored.

Oct. 24 to Nov. 22, the luckiest sign are Cancer every year. Until mid-afternoon Oct. 27 the luckiest sign will have birthdays between July 18 and 21. The remainder of the week—and until first quarter ends Nov. 6—the luckiest sign will be those with birthdays between June 21 and 23.

If Cancer-born folk wish to speculate with a partner, they should choose one born under one of these six signs—Pisces, Taurus, Cancer, Virgo, Scorpio or Capricorn. It is important to remember that the lucky number for all Cancers is 7.

Oct. 24 is United Nations Day, and the U.N. is 36 years old this year. Oct. 25 is the day which is celebrated mainly by those who have their patron saint, Crispian, and his brother, Crispin, died as martyrs on this date in 287 A.D.

John Wigton Fisher was about "The Canada" for almost four decades, especially as he travelled coast to coast, presenting, Stage 37 and Canada's Centennial year. Give a medal to every one on the work of Mr. Fisher has been a great blessing to Toronto businessmen.

Birch trees yield a quick toothbrush

We had interesting week-ends and great fun from Trinidad and enjoyed a time of cultural sharing. They showed us how to use the "Tala" flower as the "Palo", probably because of the lack of better plumbing, and we learned how to prepare the different portions of a pig. The children learned to make their own toothbrushes from twigs.

Some of the kids I found brilliant, while others, like the whole backwood pig's head, were a bit difficult to swallow. It is surprising though, it is surprising when we would not in service.

Since the power company has condemned a number of my black lines, I have been experiencing with some of the easily recognized by the paper white bark. The trees are usually the first to have bright yellow in the fall, and must have already fallen.

The inner bark is edible. It can be cut into strips and boiled or eaten right from the tree. I find it bitter and not very palatable. It may also be dried and then eaten.

The small twigs and the tender bark along the roots can be stepped into tea. They are rich in Vitamin A, B1, B2, C and E. To preserve

Down the Crude 16-13

Brewers repeat as flag champs

The Crude finally got on the scoreboard with a slight off Ron Barker's long punt into the Brewer and back.

On the last play of the first half, the Crude offense caught the Brewers' defense to move six and make the contest close. Barker hit Don McLean on a 80-yard pass-and-run play for the major. They missed the convert to end the half with the Brewers ahead 5-7.

The teams fought hard in the second half to decide the championship, but the Brewers were able to retain their slim margin with some tough defense.

The Brewers and Crude exchanged touchdowns in the second half, but the Brewers stopped the Crude from getting any scoring points late in the game. Barker gambled to try and move his club into scoring position, but the Crude's defense got a consistent together.

Even while on his back, great Ron Barker of the Brewers tries to unload the ball. While Crude defenders get good penetration on the play, the Brewers came out on top in the flag football championship.

Brad Turnbull led the Brewers as the ground, rolling in many long runs through the holes created by his powerful offensive line.

Oldtimers hit the ice

Drayton Valley's Lamp-lighters will hit the ice next Tuesday (Oct. 27) in Ponoka to begin their first season in the Central Alberta Oldtimers Hockey League.

Now in their third season, the Lamp-lighters have joined the oldtimers' league along with Camrose, Red Deer, Leduc, and other communities.

Drayton Valley's first home game will be on Oct. 28 when they play Camrose at 8 p.m. in the arena. The age class for oldtimers is 35 and over, and the Lamp-lighters broke up into several teams for the season.

The Lamp-lighters' executive includes general manager Gerry Saunders, coach Kevin Tomlinson and public relations manager Don DeGuer.

DeGuer stressed the oldtimers' league is mainly for fun and recreation, but he added the calibre of play should be very good this season.

The Lamp-lighters plan some benefit games against various celebrity squads, and they will also take part in the Camrose tournament from Dec. 4 to 6.

Associated with the Canadian Oldtimers' Hockey Association, the league will be competing in the nationally sanctioned tournament in Victoria, B.C., from Jan. 22 to 24 for the Pacific Cup.

CRUDE QUARTERBACK RON BARKER spent a good deal of time on the run in the Ponoka flag football game Sunday. The Brewers edged the Crude 16-13 to take the title.

Curling season coming

Registration was down from past years at the Drayton Valley Curling Club's general meeting and registration night, held Oct. 14 at the curling rink.

However, Maurice Neal, who was named club president at the meeting, said the decreased registration is not large enough to really worry.

Commanders shaping up

The M&R Trucking Commanders are hard at work preparing for the upcoming Junior B hockey season, and team management is confident the club will be ready for the season on Oct. 21.

In their first regular season start, Drayton Valley will take on Hinton in the arena at 6:15 p.m.

Manager Ernie Stables said with a nucleus of players from last year's squad, plus some new additions, the Commanders "should be as good or better than last year."

Stables said the exhibition matches will give management a chance to look over their lineup in the team but about 60 sponsors to advertise in their hockey program.

Players have taken notice of the command support, and the Flyers are giving all happy with the support given by local businesses and the community in general. So far, the team has about 60 sponsors to advertise in their hockey program.

Canada Safety Council

Concern over eye injuries

The Canada Safety Council has voiced concern over the incidence of eye injuries in sports as reported to a Toronto ophthalmologist.

Dr. Tom Pashby, by his father practises across the country.

At least 100 eyes were lost by Canadian players in senior sports during the last seven years. It is suggested there have been many more eye injuries which have gone unreported.

Hockey has higher eye injury frequency and severity rates than any other sport. It accounts for 80 per cent of reported cases of blinded eyes. During the past year, 68 eye injuries to hockey players were reported.

and some of these players were wearing a face protector.

The average age of injured players in 1971 was 19 years whereas in 1980 it was 26 and a half years. All hockey players should wear face protectors certified by the Canadian Standards Association.

When buying hockey ballets and face protectors for their children, parents must make sure they are following instructions attached to such products.

Backgammon and squash players must wear eye protectors with CSA approved lenses. There are reports of 68 eye injuries suffered by players wearing lensless protectors. Ball hockey goaltenders must wear face protectors, even when playing road hockey.

Dr. Pashby is heading up a CSA committee which is developing standards for recreational protectors. It is expected the standard will be complete by the end of this year.

THE RIGGERS PARTBALL club held its win-up banquet last Friday, and coach Jerry Harvey, on the right, was on hand to honor Gary Isaac as the player who displayed the most daring and sportsmanship over the past season. Catcher Wayne Harvey was a popular choice as most valuable player. (Photo by Chris Shannahan)

THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD

When selecting helmets Safety comes first

By Paul Mills, Co-ordinator and Corporate Officer, Canadian Standards Association

It's soon to be hockey season again. If you're one of those lucky parents who's about to enter the world of their hockey, you've got some things to learn. As with all children's activities, safety comes first.

In 1979 Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada passed regulations to protect children's helmets from what could be a very serious report. The regulations referring to canoes under the Insurance Products Act, and cover the insurance advertising and sale of hockey helmets in Canada. This is to ensure greater protection for Canadian children playing sports.

All hockey and lacrosse helmets must meet minimum standards of performance and must also be labelled to that effect. It added such items as a chin strap.

As well, the Flyers will provide all minor citizens and handicapped persons complimentary season passes.

The Flyers invite all interested minor citizens in Drayton Valley's first home game in Saturday, Nov. 7 at 8:30 p.m. against the Rocky Mountain House Rams.

There have been three types of injuries, though, in an upcoming release I'll talk about these items.

about. Neil added the local curlers are still hoping to be on the ice by the first week in November.

And from Neil becoming president, it was decided Peggy Macdonald would be vice-president, Shirley Paine the secretary, and Larry Macdonald the treasurer.

Neil added any other interested curlers can get in touch with the executive for more details on the local curling program.

in the local school. The regulations referring to canoes under the Insurance Products Act, and cover the insurance advertising and sale of hockey helmets in Canada. This is to ensure greater protection for Canadian children playing sports.

Although holes or openings are allowed, they must not be large enough to permit a hockey stick, skate blade or puck to penetrate. The chin strap must be designed in such a way as to prevent the helmet from coming off during normal play. However, it should release under abnormal loads to prevent neck damage.

Finally, the helmet must have a Canadian Standards Association certification label, which indicates that the helmet has met the safety standards set out in the Canadian Standards Association Act.

Since these regulations came into effect there's been a substantial decrease in the number of serious head injuries suffered by young players.

About 30 people attended a Level 4 referee clinic in Drayton Valley on the weekend. The program was run in conjunction with the National Referee Certification Program.

Referees from the Drayton Valley area, as well as Watrous, Whitewater and Drummond (last part of the weekend) were on Saturday and Sunday in the Amnion Valley Hall.

The clinic was sponsored by the Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association (DVMHA) is an attempt to increase the skills of volunteers who'll be refereeing games in the local hockey system.

Instructor at the clinic was Allan Reid from Edmonton. Reid, a senior instructor and class 4 official, put the group through a number of ball exercises, using films, diagrams and other various visual aids.

Amnion Valley Hall covered during the clinic included interpretation of the rule book, penalties and positioning of the referee.

The DVMHA is also holding a coaching clinic for Levels 1 and 2 on Oct. 24 and 25 in the Amnion Valley Hall. For more information, contact Jim Johnson at 542-4230 or Ed Tuckwood at 804-800.

Between the Covers

By Lyle Peterson
Drayton Valley Memorial Library
Lyle Peterson is a look at the role of the public library. A public library is created to serve the needs of the public. The services provided by the library should support the educational, recreational and recreational needs of the community.

The library is a public library with a very broad scope. A public library must cater to the needs of a general public, which consists of all age groups, various ethnic backgrounds, special interest groups, all educational levels and groups with special needs.

The materials and resources that a public library makes available to its patrons should meet the needs of most of the community most of the time. A greater perspective of these needs are for recreational reading (fiction and non-fiction), foreign language materials for those members of the community with varied ethnic backgrounds, and supportive study materials for educational programs offered within the community.

The key word here is "supportive." At the library we are being designed with requests for curriculum-related text books and reference materials which we simply cannot provide. The agencies (schools, adult education groups, etc.) offering courses are responsible for providing adequate resource materials for their students. These are primary resources.

If given adequate prior notice of three to four weeks, your library will acquire necessary (secondary) materials for subjects required. The library cannot supply textbooks under any circumstances. If you need additional materials, give us a few weeks and we will do our very best to help you.

We recognize that our collection still has some gaps to be filled. With your input and suggestions, improvements will come just that much faster.

If you have already done so, please complete a patron comment sheet available at the checkout desk. If you have a comment, a suggestion, a need for materials or are a favorite author which we do not stock-out, we hear!

Black powder shooting

They're clannish about this sport

By Ray Hunter

Black powder shooting is something I have had a passing interest in for some time. I say a passing interest because I have passed it up for a long time.

There has been a lot of talk about the "spirit of the past." We will never return to the Model T for level interest rates. But for that bit of nostalgia, many have returned to the horse and arrow as a means of putting some of the challenges back into hunting, and many are returning to the snipe-baiting from-end loaders, too.

What is so much fun about the black powder game is the almost clanlike camaraderie that goes along with it.

I wrote this people are preparing their costumes and gear for the English Annual Tournament. Full members and Primitive Rifle Matches. It will be a super weekend. I know it.

The people of the black powder club will go to great lengths to provide outdoor as appropriate to the times of black powder shooting as possible. Authenticity is the key word, and it's lots of fun.

The people are friendly and willing to provide help and advice to anyone interested in starting the game. Why all the fuss?

The answer is simple. Black powder shooting provides good fun in a relatively low cost.

I have just finished building ammunition for my 7 mm

From the Gun Rack

From Magnum Upgraded lever for this gun is $15 for 30, prices $2.10 per 100, bullet not roughly $20 per 100 and the powder has just gone up to $25 per pound. That translates into rather expensive shooting.

On the other side of the coin, a couple of days ago I was "canning" some lead balls for my 7mm 30 lever. Haggling here, screwing there, I have managed to accumulate five of charge enough "you" lead to make 50 shots of about two pounds each. From 80 grains I have made roughly 2,500 .28 caliber round balls.

Powder is about half the price of regular modulus powder, and the percussion caps are about $3.00 per 100. It does not take a mathematical genius to figure out that the black powder game is a lot cheaper than most fire shooting.

The big thing, and I am not kidding you, is it is so much more fun to shoot black powder. The gun goes off with a bang and you're made and fly back from the muzzle and the shooter is certainly aware his gun has fired.

The surprising thing about black powder game is the absence of any real rules.

You know, I have heard anecdotes of the big boys philosophically say that, cannot this the 4th Amendment? Haggling don't really kick in the normal sense of the word. What you get, they say, is a hefty share.

I find, my friends, that the other day and I can tell you that they do not shoot, they kick the lead.

Black powder shooters do not kick as much as their modulus counterparts—they are a real joy to shoot. Once they are money to shoot on after shooting, and unlike modulus hunters, they do require quite prompt cleaning.

But that is part of the game. Lead kick is—your may be in some exciting fun.

A taste of the good old days at the eighth Tomahawk powder shoot contest... photos by Roxanne Greenley EVENTS PLANNED FROM late and tomorrow through to shooting matches at the eighth annual Tomahawk fall rodeo and primitive rifle matches. The two-day event included a wide range of activities for all ages.

A STEADY HAND and careful aim was needed to shoot the strings in two in the "three your paces" contest. The objective of the contest was to shoot a string holding a bottle without the bottle breaking when it hit the ground.

SMOKE GETS IN your eyes when the rifle you're using just happens to be one of the many at the community at Tomahawk.

WET, SLIPPERY MUD was the prize for the losers of the log-wed event. It was the final event which capped off the Tomahawk fall rodeo and primitive rifle matches held last weekend.

STOPPING IN FRONT of the ropes to partake with old friends was one of the many scenes from the past that was witnessed at the Tomahawk fall rodeo and primitive rifle matches held last weekend.

Farm interest rates

Deplorable, charges Union

"To a word, it's deplorable," said Mr. Ted Strain, president of the National Farmers' Union, speaking in response to the decision of the Farm Credit Corporation to increase interest rates to 10 1/2 per cent.

The NFU president, speaking at the National Farmers' Union office in Edmonton, continued, "they are making themselves completely ineffective as an agency. When the interest rates stood at 14 per cent, they were already turning down one-third of the loan requests they received on the basis of 'insufficient repayment potential'."

"In our view, the function of the FCC was to help young and beginning farmers, before their operations achieved the financial stability that would make them welcome clients to banks," he said in fact, though, it has been open only to farmers who have mismanaged equity in their property—those who need it least, he stated. "We don't want to exaggerate the importance of the increase. We must realize that even 14 per cent was far too high a rate for a government agency to charge. Any double-digit interest rate demonstrates to us that the FCC has lost sight of its real purpose to support the continuance of the small, independent farm by farm."

Mr. Strain said. "For instance, we have called various stages we can take. For instance, we have called Phases 1 through 4, which are all aspects of the present economic situation, and I am recommending that the National Farmers' Union join the Canadian Labour Congress in its nationwide protest rally on Nov. 27," Mr. Strain concluded.

More and more often we hear farmers talking about computers. They have good reasons, too. Everything from Country Guide to Farmstead Records are using computers in one way or another. We are aware that as "computer bugs" proliferate in agricultural operations, and these bugs pretty interesting with the current market. The trouble is computers are an unknown quantity. club binges. Sure, wish more friends would be shown here. That night we saw the longer film at Drop-in Centre and this time only eight of us were present. I do believe early in the coming week we will have films again.

These films are sent from Edmonton for our enjoyment. Couldn't some more come and see them with us? They are very nice films.

Oct. 15 I was very pleasantly surprised to have 10 tables for whist. Thank you all for coming. Also I must apologise to our friends for putting them back in Tumahawk, not D.V.

Our high for ladies was Natalie Kruger. High for men was Fred Duckett and low was Cal Benett. Russ and Jerry Stettin dropped in for no reason. Fred was not back home, not even in Memorial Hospital. He's still pretty weak.

Oliver they visited with Anne Gibson and found her quite well. At Okanagan Falls they visited with Donald Reid and his wife. Even though the weather was far from great while they were gone, they had a good time and enjoyed the visiting.

Wired and Shirley had returned home from a two-week holiday in Ontario, B.C., where they visited with Shirley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Viner. The Viners formerly lived in Warburg, but really enjoyed their return to Okanagan Falls. The Viners report having a wonderful time and the fishing was great. David Smith is home from Lays for a short stay before he returns to Lays to work.

From the Representative to the Elementary School Board was accepted a substantial amount of money for the school board Tuesday on the recommendation of the school trustees and school board. The addition includes a gymnasium with showers and change rooms, a library, a military room, a music room, a kitchen and a staff room. Staff and students have been using the new area since Oct. 1 and everyone is "quite pleased with the work," according to building committee chairman Frank Brown.

Happy Halloween The Western Review

Council "blinded," says Mayor

Bylaws read for 50th St. south

By Monica Dicks
Drayton Valley council took the first step in approving a $400,000 debt-levy bylaw to cover the costs of the 50th Street south project last week, but the move wasn't without some opposition to borrowing more funds before the council's credit rating with the provincial government.

Council gave first readings to three bylaws to raise cash for the project—all of which will be collected from local taxpayers through increased water and sewer rates "and/or levies as collected from time to time for such purposes." First reading was also given to a bylaw to increase local water rates over the next five years by about $4 every night month, and sewer rates by $3.

The debt-levy bylaw did not receive approval from Mayor Bob Mayhew, who noted the plan should first be checked through the Local Authorities Board in Edmonton to determine if the town could borrow any additional funds.

"You're being blinded by a need," he told council, "and you have given no thought to how we're going to pay for it."
However, councillor Jim Wolf pointed out the method of repayment is clearly stated in the bylaw. "The upgrading of our water and sewer facilities will be repaid over the years by increases in our water and sewer rates," he added, "and this has been discussed by this council at great length."

Mayor Mayhew pointed for a delay where the bylaw could first be checked through the Local Authorities Board. "We're capable of handling this if it needs to be," he noted that the only real way of facing this was to approve first readings for the bylaws, and then await the Board's decision.
Bylaw 81-46 calls for the borrowing of $200,000 to cover the installation of a 14-inch water main and other construction from 40th Avenue to 50th Avenue along 50th Street. Bylaw 81-45 authorizes the borrowing of $60,000 for traffic lights at the intersection of 50th Avenue and 50th Street, and bylaw 81-47 calls for the borrowing of $50,000 to cover land acquisition costs for the construction project.

Police plan patrol to cut pranks

Although no major disturbances are expected, the police will come again to take possession to ensure a quiet Halloween, said an RCMP spokesman for the Drayton Valley detachment.
There have been few problems during recent years. However, the RCMP plan to maintain a "high profile police presence" during the Halloween weekend, said Corporal Chris Lee.
This will be done with the help of the fire department and a number of organizations in the area. "These volunteers will aid police by acting as security personnel in various buildings, and being on the streets to help prevent disturbances."
According to Corporal Lee, many people seem to feel that Halloween allows them to destroy property. This is not the case, however, for anyone causing a disturbance or damaging property will be arrested and charged.
"Any Halloween pranks that go beyond normal behavior will be dealt with in court," warned Corporal Lee.
It was not on any that the RCMP will focus their attention primarily on the safety of traffic safety and property damage.

Halloween are cautioned to slow down and watch for trick or treaters on the streets.
Children should dress in costumes that are not as visible in materials. This means wearing white or fluorescent clothing with marks that do not reflect their vision in any way.
Younger children should be accompanied by a parent, said Corporal Lee.
He added that parents "should be cautious and very suspicious of what's in the 'trick bag.' If any of the guidelines look strange, parents should either contact the police or throw it out."
People in residential areas should put away any lawn goods, such as vehicles in a side plan, light up garages and back areas, and watch for people that look suspicious, said Corporal Lee.
Any rowdy groups or reckless drivers should immediately be reported to police.
The prime importance on Halloween is to ensure the safety of the children, said Corporal Lee.
You can always dress a car or get a new windshield but you can't replace a child," he said.

A THEATRE BUILDING was destroyed and equipment damaged in a fire which broke out at a Champlain Petroleum oilfield battery located 12 miles east of Drayton Valley. The cause of the fire has not yet been determined. However, an investigation is currently under way. (Photo by Steven Dills)
